5. Write logic to check whether the given number is an Armstrong number.

- Read the input number
- Convert the given number into string and store the digit variable.
- Loop through the number and determine the cube root of each digit.
- Add each digit of the number
- If the num is equal to the digit, Print the number is an Armstrong number
- Otherwise, not An Armstrong number

8. Write logic to check whether all characters in a given string are unique.

- Read the given input string
- Create an empty list to store unique entries.
- Convert that given string into a individual characters.
- Loop through each character and check that string present only once in that word compare with all the 24 alphabets.
- If any repetitive found print that string not unique
- Otherwise print that given string is unique.

9. Write logic to find the longest word in a given sentence

- Read the input sentence.
- split the given sentence into a group of words.
- Assume the first word is longest and compare each word with that current longest word.
- If the longest word is found.
- Return the longest word.